

Forsyth Medical Center Foundation

A 2008, $254,815 traditional grant was awarded to improve healthcare in North Carolina through the development of a highly qualified pharmacy technical workforce which will enable pharmacists to transition from product to patient-care focus.

Grant funds will be used to provide funding for the development of an accredited associate of applied science (AAS) degree to support the development of pharmacy technology. Twelve NC community colleges were offering the AAS degree by the end of 2012.